

Consumer Financial
Protection Bureau

Good afternoon,

We're implementing changes to the format of the Examination Reports and Supervisory Letters that we send to supervised entities after our reviews of their compliance with federal consumer financial laws. The main change is the creation of a single section in the report that includes all of the items that we expect the entity to address when a review identifies violations of law or weaknesses in compliance management. This entire section will be referred to as "Matters Requiring Attention," regardless of whether the Bureau is requiring specific attention by an entity's Board of Directors.

Read the Winter 2013 Supervisory Highlights to learn about the changes:

Thank you,

Consumer Financial Protection Bureau

P.S. The actual templates for the reports are part of the Supervision and Examination Manual. Any questions regarding the new templates may be sent to cfpb_supervision@cfpb.gov.
