

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

IN RE: CATHODE RAY TUBE (CRT)
ANTITRUST LITIGATION

MDL No. 1917

Case No. CV 07-5944-SC

This Order Relates To:
ALL INDIRECT PURCHASER ACTIONS

ORDER DENYING PHILIPS
TAIWAN LIMITED AND PHILIPS
DO BRASIL LTDA.'S MOTIONS
TO DISMISS FOR INSUFFICIENT
SERVICE OF PROCESS AND LACK OF PERSONAL JURISDICTION

I. INTRODUCTION

Now before the Court is Defendants Philips Taiwan Limited ("PTL") and Philips do Brasil Ltda.'s ("PDBL")¹ motion to dismiss the Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' ("IPPs") claims for insufficient service of process under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(5) and failure to adequately allege personal jurisdiction under Rule 12(b)(2). The motions are fully briefed. ECF Nos. 2536-5 ("Opp'n") (filed under seal), 2560 ("Reply").² Finding this matter suitable ¹ PTL and PDBL were previously known as Philips Electronics Industries (Taiwan) ("PEIT") and Philips da Amazonia Industria Electronica Ltda. ("PAIEL"), respectively.

² The IPPs also move to file a surreply. ECF No. 2575-3 (filed under seal). The Court GRANTS the motion. The Surreply, ECF No. 2575-5, is accompanied by a Second Declaration of Lauren Capurro,

1 for disposition without oral argument, Civ. L.R. 7-1(b), the Court
2 DENIES both motions.

4 II. BACKGROUND

5 The parties are familiar with this case's facts. Plaintiffs 6 are a class of indirect purchasers of cathode ray tubes ("CRTs") or 7 products containing CRTs ("CRT Products"), which are the allegedly 8 price-fixed goods that are the basis of this antitrust MDL. The 9 movants, PTL and PDBL, are related to two of the Philips Defendants 10 that have appeared in this case: Koninklijke Philips Electronics, 11 N.V. ("Royal Philips"), the movants' Dutch parent company; and 12 Royal Philips's United States subsidiary, Philips Electronics North 13 America Corporation ("PENAC"). Plaintiffs contend that PTL and 14 PDBL have been properly served and that the Court has personal 15 jurisdiction over both of them. PTL and PDBL dispute both of these 16 claims.

17 These parties' service dispute began on April 6, 2009.
18 Plaintiffs wrote to PENAC and Royal Philips' counsel to ask if they 19 would accept service on behalf of the other Philips Defendants, 20 including PTL and PDBL, without Plaintiffs having to request 21 additional orders permitting service of foreign defendants via 22 their domestic counsel under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure
23 4(f)(3). ECF No. 2536-6 ("Capurro Decl.") ¶¶ 2-4 & Exs. 1 ("Pls.' 24 Apr. 6 Letter") & 2 ("Defs.' Apr. 14, 2009 Letter") (filed under 25 seal). This request was based in part on an order the Court issued 26

27 ECF No. 2575-7 ("Capurro Decl. II"). PTL and PDBL opposed the 28 motion, ECF No. 2597, but the Court finds their arguments uncompelling. The Court disfavors surreplies, but they will, as always, be addressed on a case-by-case basis.

1 on September 3, 2008, permitting service on several foreign 2 defendants via their United States lawyers per Rule 4(f)(3). ECF
3 No. 374 ("Sept. 3 Order").

4 Counsel for PENAC and Royal Philips refused to accept service,
5 contending that PTL and PDBL had neither subsidiaries nor counsel
6 in the United States. Defs.' Apr. 14 Letter at 1-2. Plaintiffs 7 responded to say that the September 3 Order permitted service under 8 Rule 4(f)(3) on any local agent (not necessarily a subsidiary or 9 counsel), consistent with due process, per Rio Properties, Inc. v.
10 Rio International Interlink, 284 F.3d 1007, 1016 (9th Cir. 2002).
11 Capurro Decl. Ex. 3 ("Pls.' May 6 Letter") at 1-2 (filed under 12 seal). They argued that simply accepting service under similar 13 terms to the September 3 Order, without having to brief another
14 motion, would be efficient and inexpensive, particularly since PTL 15 and PDBL's parent companies' involvement in the case assured that 16 PTL and PDBL would have notice and an opportunity to be heard, so 17 due process requirements would be satisfied. Id. Counsel for 18 PENAC and Royal Philips subsequently agreed to accept service on 19 behalf of PTL and PDBL, though they stated that they did so "under 20 protest," meaning that they did not admit to personal jurisdiction 21 and reserved the right to file a Rule 12(b)(5) motion based on 22 improper service. Capurro Decl. Ex. 4 ("Defs.' May 11 Letter")
23 (filed under seal).

24 At that time, this case's previous Special Master had required 25 all defendants seeking to file motions to dismiss to file one joint 26 motion for issues affecting all defendants in that group -- e.g., 27 the Philips Defendants -- with one additional brief permitted per 28 group. ECF No. 448 ("SM's Order Re: MTDs"). Accordingly, the

1 Philips Defendants filed a motion to dismiss Plaintiffs' then-2 operative complaint on May 18, 2009, focusing mainly on pleading, 3 limitations, and personal jurisdictional matters. See generally
4 ECF No. 476 ("Philips MTD I"). As to PTL and PDBL specifically, 5 the Philips Defendants stated that neither PTL nor PDBL had been 6 served despite the agreement stated in Defendants' May 11 Letter, 7 so they moved to dismiss based on Rule 12(b)(5). Id. at 1 n.1.

8 Plaintiffs' opposition brief to the defendants' motions to 9 dismiss notes that PTL and PDBL's motions had been deferred by 10 stipulation, so the Rule 12(b)(5) motion was not further discussed
11 by either the Special Master or the Court. ECF No. 536 ("Opp'n I") 12 at 1 n.1. That stipulation, entered on July 15, 2009, vacated the 13 briefing schedule and hearing date on the arguments PTL and PDBL
14 raised in the Philips MTD I. ECF No. 519 ("MTD Stip.") at 2. It 15 noted that the parties would meet and confer on jurisdictional 16 discovery and a new briefing schedule, and would then submit the 17 new schedule to the Court. Id.

18 The parties' positions become murky after they filed the MTD
19 Stipulation. On May 20, 2010, the Special Master had filed a 20 report stating that certain parties with jurisdictional motions had 21 suspended those motions pending further proceedings. ECF No. 718
22 ("May 20 Status Report") at 2. On May 24, 2010, PTL and PDBL's 23 counsel wrote a letter to the former Special Master in response to 24 his report, intending to clarify "the parties' agreement concerning 25 [PTL and PDBL's] pending Rule 12(b)(2) motions to dismiss 26 [Plaintiffs' complaints] for lack of personal jurisdiction." ECF 27 No. 720 ("Defs.' May 24 Letter"). Counsel wrote that the parties 28 would "continue to meet and confer on the issue of personal

1 jurisdiction in hopes of avoiding further briefing and argument on 2 these motions altogether," though he stated that he meant to 3 preserve his clients' objections to personal jurisdiction and leave
4 the Rule 12(b)(2) motions pending. Id. Neither party references 5 or provides proof of any further discussions on the issue after 6 that letter.

7 The next motion on which PTL and PDBL appear is another joint 8 motion to dismiss, ECF No. 733 ("Joint MTD II"), filed June 25, 9 2010. That motion, filed under Rule 12(b)(6), asked the Court to 10 dismiss a number of Plaintiffs' state causes of action and noted in 11 a footnote, id. at 1 n.1, that the jointly filing Defendants meant 12 to reassert and preserve all prior arguments, including those 13 raised in the Philips MTD I. Briefing and argument on that motion 14 proceeded before the Special Master, and the Court entered a 15 stipulation modifying and adopting the Special Master's tentative 16 ruling on October 25, 2010, after which Plaintiffs were given leave 17 to file a third consolidated amended complaint. No one -- not PTL, 18 PDBL, or Plaintiffs -- ever again raised the service issue until 19 the instant motion.

20 Neither party is likely to disagree that this particular 21 motion arrives amid some procedural confusion. Interpreted 22 charitably, this is likely due to logistical and communications 23 problems. PTL and PDBL never calendared a motion of their own, nor 24 did they specifically raise a Rule 12(b)(5) defense after their 25 first motion, which was itself made in a footnote. In their only 26 specific attempt to clarify anything, their counsel stated only 27 that PTL and PDBL meant for their Rule 12(b)(2) motions to remain 28

1 pending subject to the parties' discussions. He said nothing about 2 service, nor did he calendar any further motions.

3 In the four years that followed that clarification, neither 4 side rejoined either the service or the personal jurisdiction
5 issue, until now. Plaintiffs claim that PTL and PDBL accepted
6 service in 2009 and did not actually raise the argument again. PTL 7 and PDBL state that either they were never properly served or, in 8 the alternative, that the Court lacks personal jurisdiction over 9 them because they are foreign companies with insufficient minimum 10 contacts with the United States.

11 12 III. DISCUSSION

13 A. Service and Waiver

14 A federal court lacks personal jurisdiction over a defendant
15 if service of process is insufficient. Omni Capital Int'l v.
16 Rudolf Wolff & Co., 484 U.S. 97, 104 (1987). A court may dismiss 17 the action without prejudice pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil 18 Procedure 12(b)(5). Once a defendant challenges service, a 19 plaintiff bears "the burden of establishing that service was valid 20 under Rule 4." Brockmeyer v. May, 383 F.3d 798, 801 (9th Cir.
21 2004).

22 Under the circumstances now before the Court, though neither 23 party raises the issue, there is a question whether PTL and PDBL 24 have waived their right to object to Plaintiffs' service of 25 process. As a general rule, if a party files a responsive pleading 26 or makes a Rule 12 motion but does not raise one of the defenses 27 listed in Rule 12(b)(2)-(5), the party waives the right to raise 28 the defense in a later-filed Rule 12(b) motion. See Fed. R. Civ.

1 P. 12(h); Peterson v. Highland Music, Inc., 140 F.3d 1313, 1318
2 (9th Cir. 1998). But having raised the issue at an early stage of 3 the proceedings does not mean that a party cannot waive it later.
4 Peterson, 140 F.3d at 1318 (defenses like lack of personal 5 jurisdiction can be waived as a result of a party's litigation
6 conduct); see also Craters & Freighters v. Daisychain Enters., No.
7 09-4531 CW, 2010 WL 761310, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 2, 2010), aff'd 8 sub nom Craters & Freighters v. Benz, 465 Fed. App'x 719 (9th Cir.
9 2012) (defense of insufficient process can be waived based on 10 litigation conduct).

11 Deciding whether PTL and PDBL waived their insufficient 12 service of process defense requires the Court to evaluate PTL and 13 PDBL's conduct in this case to determine whether their behavior 14 militates in favor of finding waiver. See Peterson, 140 F.3d at 15 1318 (citing other circuit courts' cases holding that certain 16 factors can favor finding waiver even if a defense was properly 17 raised in a Rule 12 motion); see also New.Net, Inc. v. Lavasoft, 18 356 F. Supp. 2d 1071, 1074 (C.D. Cal. 2003). In this case, as 19 explained below, the Court finds that PTL and PDBL's earlier
20 conduct in this litigation constitutes waiver of their Rule 21 12(b)(5) defense.

22 In PTL and PDBL's favor, they raised their Rule 12(b)(5)
23 motion in the Philips Defendants' first motion to dismiss 24 Plaintiffs' complaint, and, when read most charitably, the first 25 footnote of the Joint MTD II technically preserves all previously 26 raised defenses. But PTL and PDBL's counsel, clarifying his 27 clients' positions regarding the Special Master's May 20 Status
28 Report, stated very clearly that the only pending motions were PTL

1 and PDBL's Rule 12(b)(2) motions to dismiss, and that the issue of 2 personal jurisdiction was the only pending motion. Defs.' May 24
3 Letter at 1.

4 The Court finds that in this particular long-running MDL, 5 filing sworn statements and participating in status conferences
6 before a Special Master are litigation activities that support a 7 finding of waiver. In such situations, permitting a defendant to 8 represent to the Court and other parties that a defense has been 9 abandoned, without putting that party at risk of waiver, could 10 unfairly allow parties to take advantage of other litigants who 11 take the abandonment on its face and do not then return to the 12 issue. See Peterson, 140 F.3d at 1317-18. The Court finds that 13 the vaguely worded language of the Joint MTD II footnote, submitted
14 after the May 24 Letter,³ does not override PTL and PDBL's 15 counsel's clear statement of the parties' litigation status.

16 The May 24 Letter, sent on Howrey LLP's letterhead and signed
17 by "Counsel to PEIT and PAIEL," did not indicate that counsel 18 continued to appear "under protest," that PTL and PDBL still 19 maintained that service was improper, or that the Rule 12(b)(5) 20 motion was meant to be preserved and reasserted. The May 24 Letter 21 references the complaints only to dispute their allegations of 22 personal jurisdiction -- it never refers to the service of the 23 complaints themselves. PTL and PDBL certainly had the opportunity 24 to maintain their service objections before the Special Master, or 25

26 ³ That note read, in relevant part, "Defendants reassert and 27 preserve each of the arguments raised in their prior joint and 28 individual Motions to Dismiss, specifically . . . Philips
Defendants' May 18, 2009 Motion to Dismiss Indirect Purchaser Plaintiff's [sic] Consolidated Amended Complaint." Joint MTD II at 3 n.1.

1 in their subsequent letter to the Special Master and the Court
2 after the Special Master's May 20 Report. Even if PTL and PDBL
3 were correct that Plaintiffs had not re-served them with process by 4 the time the Philips MTD I was filed, Reply at 2, the May 24
5 Letter's conspicuous statement that only the Rule 12(b)(2) defense 6 remained overrides any service disputes that remained at that time.
7 Therefore, even if the Joint MTD II were enough to meet the minimum
8 requirements of Rule 12, the Court finds that PTL and PDBL's 9 clarification of their litigation position militates in favor of 10 finding waiver in this case. Peterson, 140 F.3d at 1319.

11 Accordingly, the Court DENIES PTL and PDBL's Rule 12(b)(5) 12 motion as untimely, finding that their May 24 Letter clarified that 13 they had waived any service objections to Plaintiffs' complaint by 14 May 24, 2010 at the latest. The Court now turns to PTL and PDBL's 15 Rule 12(b)(2) motion, which they properly preserved.

16 B. Personal Jurisdiction

17 Under Rule 12(b)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, 18 defendants may move to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction.
19 The Court may consider evidence presented in affidavits and 20 declarations determining personal jurisdiction. Doe v. Unocal 21 Corp., 248 F.3d 915, 922 (9th Cir. 2001). Plaintiffs bear the 22 burden of showing that the Court has personal jurisdiction over 23 Defendants. See Pebble Beach Co. v. Caddy, 453 F.3d 1151, 1154
24 (9th Cir. 2006). "[T]his demonstration requires that the plaintiff 25 make only a prima facie showing of jurisdictional facts to 26 withstand the motion to dismiss." Id. (quotations omitted).
27 "[T]he court resolves all disputed facts in favor of the plaintiff 28" Id. (quotations omitted). "The plaintiff cannot simply

1 rest on the bare allegations of its complaint, but uncontroverted
2 allegations in the complaint must be taken as true." Mavrix Photo, 3 Inc. v. Brand Techs., Inc., 647 F.3d 1218, 1223 (9th Cir. 2011)
4 (quotations and citations omitted). The Court may not assume the 5 truth of allegations that are contradicted by affidavit. Data
6 Disc, Inc. v. Sys. Tech. Assocs., Inc., 557 F.2d 1280, 1284 (9th 7 Cir. 1977).

8 Courts may exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant
9 only if (1) a statute confers jurisdiction and (2) exercising 10 jurisdiction would comport with constitutional due process. See 11 Action Embroidery Corp. v. Atl. Embroidery, Inc., 368 F.3d 1174, 12 1177 (9th Cir. 2004). Since the federal Clayton Act, 15 U.S.C. § 13 22, confers jurisdiction in this case, the question on this motion 14 is whether exercising jurisdiction would comport with due process.

15 For a court to exercise personal jurisdiction over a non-16 resident defendant consistent with due process, the defendant must 17 have "certain minimum contacts" with the relevant forum "such that 18 the maintenance of the suit does not offend 'traditional notions of 19 fair play and substantial justice.'" Int'l Shoe Co. v. Washington, 20 326 U.S. 310, 316 (1945) (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 21 463 (1940)). The relevant forum for this case's minimum contacts 22 analysis is the United States. Go-Video, Inc. v. Akai Elec. Co.
23 Ltd., 885 F.2d 1406, 1415-16 (9th Cir. 1989).

24 If a defendant has sufficient minimum contacts with the 25 relevant forum, personal jurisdiction may be founded on either 26 general jurisdiction or specific jurisdiction. Panavision Int'l, 27 L.P. v. Toeppen, 141 F.3d 1316, 1320 (9th Cir. 1998). "A court may 28 exercise specific jurisdiction where the cause of action arises out

1 of or has a substantial connection to the defendant's contacts with 2 the forum." Glencore Grain Rotterdam B.V. v. Shivnath Rai
3 Harnarain Co., 284 F.3d 1114, 1123 (9th Cir. 2002) (citing Hanson
4 v. Denckla, 357 U.S. 235, 251 (1958)). "Alternatively, a defendant 5 whose contacts are substantial, continuous, and systematic is 6 subject to a court's general jurisdiction even if the suit concerns 7 matters not arising out of his contact with the forum." Id.
8 (citing Helicopteros Nacionales de Colombia, S.A. v. Hall, 466 U.S.
9 408, 415 n.9 (1984)).

10 Plaintiffs do not argue that the Court has general
11 jurisdiction over PTL and PDBL. They only argue that the Court 12 should exercise specific jurisdiction. Courts may exercise 13 specific personal jurisdiction depending on "the nature and quality 14 of the defendant's contacts in relation to the cause of action."
15 Data Disc, 557 F.2d at 1287. The Ninth Circuit applies a three-16 prong test when analyzing a claim of specific jurisdiction:

17
18 (1) The non-resident defendant must purposefully
19 direct his activities or consummate some transaction 20 with the forum or resident thereof; or perform some 21 act by which he purposefully avails himself of the 22 privilege of conducting activities in the forum, 23 thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its 24 laws;

22 (2) the claim must be one which arises out of or 23 relates to the defendant's forum-related activities; 24 and

24 (3) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with 25 fair play and substantial justice, i.e. it must be 26 reasonable.

26 Schwarzenegger v. Fred Martin Motor Co., 374 F.3d 797, 802 (9th 27 Cir. 2004). The plaintiff bears the burden of satisfying the first 28 two prongs, and if he or she fails to satisfy either, specific jurisdiction is not established. Sher v. Johnson, 911 F.2d 1357, 1361 (9th Cir. 1990). If the plaintiff satisfies these prongs, the burden shifts to the defendant "to present a compelling case" that the exercise of jurisdiction would not be reasonable. Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 477 (1985).

Plaintiffs argue that the Court has specific jurisdiction over PTL and PDBL because they expressly aimed their anticompetitive actions at the United States by coordinating information with CRT Product manufacturers to ensure that CRT Products were sold in the United States at supracompetitive prices, and because PTL and PDBL participated in a settlement with the Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs ("DPPs"). Plaintiffs also contend that PTL and PDBL sold substantial quantities of CRTs into the United States, because PTL was the legal entity responsible for Philips Display Components' ("PDC")⁴ production of color display tubes ("CDTs") for the United States market until the Philips-LG joint venture of June 2001, while PDBL was responsible for PDC's production of 14" and 20" color picture tubes ("CPTs") for sale in the United States until June 2001.⁵

i. Participation in the Settlement with the DPPs

The Court agrees with PTL and PDBL that participation in the DPP settlement, on its own, does not support a finding of personal jurisdiction over PTL and PDBL. While PTL and PDBL are certainly bound by that settlement agreement, Plaintiffs' present motion does not relate to that agreement, and neither PTL nor PDBL has undertaken any affirmative claim related to it. See Dow Chem. Co. v. Calderon, 422 F.3d 827, 834 (9th Cir. 2005) (supporting a finding of personal jurisdiction where a defendant had independently sought affirmative relief before a court concerning a transaction or occurrence that formed the basis of a different case). The Court does not find that existence of the settlement agreement, without more, raises a prima facie case that PTL and PDBL purposefully availed themselves of, or directed activity into, the Court's jurisdiction.

⁴ "PDC" is what Plaintiffs call the CRT divisions within each regional Philips Electronics entity.

⁵ CPTs and CDTs are different subtypes of CRTs. CPTs were used in televisions, and CDTs were used in computer monitors.

ii. Purposeful Direction

The Ninth Circuit applies a three-part test for purposeful direction: "the defendant allegedly must have (1) committed an intentional act, (2) expressly aimed at the forum state, (3) causing harm that the defendant knows is likely to be suffered in the forum state." Id. When considering the first prong, "something more than mere foreseeability" of an effect in the forum state is necessary. Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d at 805 (internal citation and quotation omitted). And as the Ninth Circuit has warned, "the foreign-acts-with-forum-effects jurisdictional principle must be applied with caution, particularly in an international context." Kramer Motors, Inc. v. British Leyland, Ltd., 628 F.2d 1175, 1178 (9th Cir. 1980) (internal quotations and citations omitted).

The parties do not appear to dispute the first prong of the test. See Opp'n at 21-25, Reply at 9-12. But PTL and PDBL contend that Plaintiffs fail to show that PTL and PDBL "sold and distributed CRT Products either directly or through [their]

1 subsidiaries or affiliates throughout the United States." Reply at 2 10-12.

3 Plaintiffs argue that PTL and PDBL expressly aimed their 4 anticompetitive activities at the United States, and that their 5 evidence carries their burden at this stage. An antitrust 6 defendant "expressly aims" an intentional act at a forum state when 7 its allegedly anticompetitive behavior is targeted at a resident of 8 the forum, or at the forum itself. See In re W. States Wholesale 9 Natural Gas Antitrust Litig., 715 F.3d 716, 743 (9th Cir. 2013).

10 The parties discuss Plaintiffs' pleadings and proof in terms
11 of two series of events: the first concerns PTL and PDBL's
12 direction of price-fixing activities into the United States 13 primarily via Glass Meetings,⁶ and the second concerns PTL and 14 PDBL's manufacture of CDTs and CPTs, respectively, for sale in the 15 United States.

16 a. Meetings

17 Plaintiffs' evidence regarding PTL and PDBL's participation in 18 Glass Meetings consists mainly of meeting reports, all 19 unfortunately under seal.⁷ These meeting reports indicate that PTL 20 employees participated in the Glass Meetings, discussing both the 21 risk of decreased CDT demand in the North American market generally 22 and the comparative strength of the United States monitor market.

23 ⁶ "Glass Meetings" were what the Defendants in this MDL allegedly 24 called their organized, high-level, intra-company meetings to exchange pricing information and establish plans for the future.

25 ⁷ The Court's December 27, 2012 Order still stands: "[T]he Court 26 will look favorably upon motions to intervene filed by members of 27 the public who wish to access the sealed documents. If such 28 motions are filed, the Court will not hesitate to appoint a Special Master to review the documents to be unsealed, whose fee shall be paid directly by the party seeking to preserve confidentiality."
ECF No. 1512.

1 Capurro Decl. Exs. 22 ("Mar. 1, 1999 Notes"), 25 ("May 26, 2000
2 Notes") (filed under seal). Meeting participants, including a PTL 3 manager, also specifically agreed to convey "Agreed Prices" to 4 their customers and to avoid leaking meeting minutes. May 26, 2000
5 Notes.

6 PTL and PDBL contend that reports like these are not specific 7 enough to show express aim toward the United States. See Reply at 8 10-12. They argue that Plaintiffs' evidence as to PDBL's lack of 9 cooperation with price-fixing agreements at some point in 1999
10 actually shows that PDBL was not participating in the conspiracy 11 and directing CRTs to the United States prior to 1999. Id. at 11
12 (citing Opp'n at 23) (relevant documents under seal). PTL and PDBL
13 therefore conclude that Plaintiffs' proof does not show that PDBL
14 was involved in United States-directed price-fixing activities
15 after 1999. Id. Finally, PTL and PDBL note that a Philips Display
16 Components Company North America Strategy Review for the years
17 1996-2000, Capurro Decl. Ex. 34 (filed under seal), refers to dates 18 prior to PDBL's alleged participation in the conspiracy and does 19 not specify where PDBL ships CRTs. Reply at 11. PTL and PDBL 20 contend that purportedly corroborating testimony is similarly non-21 specific because it only refers to PDBL's supply of CRTs to "North 22 America," probably Mexico, and states that at some unspecified 23 time, CRTs used in the United States were produced by a separate 24 entity in a United States factory. Id. (citing Capurro Decl. Ex.
25 19 (filed under seal)).

26 The Court disagrees with PTL and PDBL's interpretation of 27 these facts. While North America generally, and Mexico
28 specifically, were indeed discussed at these meetings, the reports

1 indicate that the United States market was quite significant to the 2 alleged co-conspirators, and that PTL employees specifically 3 discussed potential price and shipping charges directed toward the 4 United States. Capurro Decl. Ex. 31 ("Apr. 14, 2000 Report").
5 Moreover, PENAC's Rule 30(b)(6) witness, as well as various other 6 depositions and pieces of documentary evidence, confirmed that 7 PENAC's Mexican operations produced monitors for the United States 8 market, and it has always been clear in this case that the United 9 States market was the most significant CRT and CRT Product market 10 for most of the defendants in the case, including Philips. See, 11 e.g., IPP Surreply at 5-7 & Capurro Decl. II ¶¶ 8-10 & Exs. A-F.

12 PDBL is correct that the sealed documents also state that PDBL
13 was not cooperating with certain Defendants' pricing and supply
14 amounts to Sharp Roxy Electronics Corp. ("SREC"), a Malaysian TV
15 manufacturer, whose New York office handled purchases from PDBL.
16 Capurro Decl. Ex. 27 ("January 8, 2000 Email") (discussing SREC's 17 forecast in an email thread involving a PDBL Marketing Manager)
18 (filed under seal). But the Court is not convinced by PDBL's 19 contention that this is evidence of PDBL's innocence: the evidence 20 indicates that PDBL agreed to "correct" its prices to SREC -- that 21 is, to "raise the price to match everyone else." Capurro Decl Ex.
22 30 ("Jan. 24, 2000 Report"). This is not innocent behavior.

23 b. Sales

24 As to PTL and PDBL's sale of CRTs into the United States, PTL 25 and PDBL contend that sale of CRTs to "North America," without 26 more, or sale of monitors (not CRTs) to the United States, cannot 27 establish specific jurisdiction, especially since testimony 28 indicates that PTL-manufactured CDTs were shipped to Mexico, not

1 the United States. ECF No. 2560-1 ("Koons Decl.") ¶ 9 & Ex. A ("De 2 Moor Depo.") (filed under seal) at 226:5-10. PTL contends that 3 even if those monitors were later sold into the United States by a 4 separate legal entity, PTL itself did not create the contact with 5 the United States. Reply at 10 (citing Walden v. Fiore, 134 S. Ct.
6 1115, 1122 (2014)). They claim that Plaintiffs' evidence of PTL's
7 CRT sales into "North America" does not specifically state that PTL
8 sold CRTs to United States customers. Id. at 10 (citing Capurro 9 Decl. Exs. 23, 24, 34, 37 (filed under seal)). They also claim 10 that other documents refer only to PTL's sale of computer monitors, 11 not CRTs, to the United States. Id. (citing Capurro Decl. Exs. 19, 12 22, 25 (filed under seal)).

13 The Court finds that this contention is overridden in part by 14 countervailing facts. For example, a PTL manager explicitly 15 testified to his meeting with United States companies like Dell and 16 Gateway to "promote tube sales," and to his attendance of United 17 States consumer electronics shows. Capurro Decl. Ex. 10 ("Smith 18 Depo.") at 214:22-216:16, 328:22-329:3.

19 Further, PTL focuses on the act of sale itself, but equally 20 important is the act of aiming anticompetitive activity to the 21 United States. In re W. States Wholesale Natural Gas Antitrust
22 Litig., 715 F.3d at 743. The Court finds that such is the creation 23 of a type of contact -- aiming anticompetitive acts toward the 24 United States but rerouting them through a related entity should 25 not shield PTL from what Plaintiffs have sufficiently alleged to 26 have been United States-directed price-fixing activity. See 27 Walden, 134 S. Ct. at 1122 (citing Burger King, 471 U.S. at 475, 28 for the principle that the defendant must create the contact with

1 the forum state).

2 Finally, the Rule 30(b)(6) witness whom PTL and PDBL cite as 3 having stated that PTL-manufactured CDTs and monitors were sold 4 through Mexico says, in the same deposition, that the monitors were 5 being manufactured specifically for a United States company. De 6 Moor Depo. at 140:22-141:8, 175:17-176:18. This supports the 7 finding that PTL was expressly aiming anticompetitive activity at 8 the United States. See In re W. States Wholesale Natural Gas 9 Antitrust Litig., 715 F.3d at 743. At this point, with specific 10 evidence indicating that PTL's actions were aimed toward setting 11 supracompetitive prices in the United States, the Court finds that 12 PTL directed its activities toward this forum.

13 Regarding PDBL, the Court's findings are similar. PDBL's 14 contention that it was not cooperating with purported price-fixing 15 deals sometime in 1999 is weak. The fact that PDBL was clearly 16 participating in price-fixing meetings meant to direct sales of its 17 CRTs into the United States is enough, at this stage, for the Court 18 to find that it has personal jurisdiction over PDBL. Specifically, 19 the November 9, 1999 Report, Capurro Decl. Ex. 28, states clearly 20 that PDBL had in the past offered low prices to customers in the 21 United States but had recently begun to refuse to do so, while the 22 January 24, 2000 Report states correspondingly that PDBL would 23 follow pricing guidelines in the future. At least some of these 24 prices were directed to a buyer in New York. See Capurro Decl. ¶ 25 53 (SREC negotiated its deals with PDBL from New York). PDBL never 26 addresses those facts. The Court finds Plaintiffs have 27 sufficiently made a prima facie showing that PDBL expressly aimed 28 its price-fixing activities at the United States.

1 iii. But-For Causation

2 Regarding the last prong of specific jurisdiction analysis,
3 Plaintiffs must make a prima facie showing that PTL and PDBL's 4 United States-directed actions were a "but-for" cause of their 5 claims. Bancroft & Masters, Inc. v. Augusta Nat., Inc., 223 F.3d 6 1082, 1088 (9th Cir. 2000); Unocal, 248 F.3d at 924. This "but-7 for" test requires "some nexus between the cause of action and the 8 defendant's activities in the forum." Shute v. Carnival Cruise 9 Lines, 897 F.2d 377, 387 (9th Cir. 1988), overruled on other 10 grounds, 499 U.S. 585 (1991).

11 The Court finds that Plaintiffs have established this nexus by 12 pleading that they paid artificially high prices in the United 13 States for CRT Products, and that the prices were set by PTL and 14 PDBL during Glass Meetings and in other United States-directed 15 actions.

16 iv. Reasonableness

17 The Court finds that Plaintiffs have met the standard for 18 specific jurisdiction. The next issue is whether exercising 19 jurisdiction would be reasonable. PTL and PDBL do not argue this 20 point, but the Court must nevertheless consider it. In determining 21 whether the exercise of jurisdiction over a foreign defendant would 22 be reasonable, the Court must consider seven factors:

23 (1) the extent of the defendant's purposeful 24 interjection into the forum state,

25 (2) the burden on the defendant in defending in the forum,

26 (3) the extent of the conflict with the sovereignty of 27 the defendant's state,

28 (4) the forum state's interest in adjudicating the dispute,

1 (5) the most efficient judicial resolution of the 2 controversy,

3 (6) the importance of the forum to the plaintiff's 4 interest in convenient and effective relief, and 5 (7) the existence of an alternative forum.

6 Bancroft & Masters, 223 F.3d at 1088 (citing Burger King, 471 U.S.
7 at 476-77). It is the defendant's burden to demonstrate 8 unreasonableness. Id. at 1088.

9 First, the extent of PTL and PDBL's purposeful interjection 10 into the United States is enough for the Court to find that they 11 are subject to personal jurisdiction here, as explained above.

12 Second, the Court finds that PTL and PDBL's burdens could be 13 substantial. However, the inconvenience for PTL and PDBL must be 14 so great as to constitute a deprivation of due process, which is 15 not the case here. See Panavision, 141 F.3d at 1323. They are 16 represented by talented United States counsel, and the facts do not 17 indicate to the Court that participating in this litigation further 18 would be untenable for them. Costliness and evidentiary complexity 19 are simply parts of modern multinational litigation, especially 20 when the claims at issue concern an international price-fixing 21 conspiracy.

22 Third, as noted above, Defendant specifically directed price-23 fixing activity toward and into the United States. Even though 24 much of the alleged conspiracy-related activity occurred abroad, 25 just as it did with many other Defendants, the end target and end 26 result was the United States. Moreover, only a narrow exercise of 27 specific jurisdiction is at issue as to PTL and PDBL, which lessens 28 the concerns of comity raised in Daimler AG v. Bauman, 134 S. Ct.

1 746, 761-63 (2014) (finding that international comity concerns
2 should have weighed more heavily in an appellate court's analysis
3 of general jurisdiction). This case is to some degree
4 international in character, which would weigh in PTL and PDBL's
5 favor, see Amoco Egypt Oil Co. v. Leonis Nav. Co., Inc., 1 F.3d 6 848, 852 (9th Cir. 1993), but in this case the Court finds that 7 those Defendants' United States-oriented activity, plus the 8 narrower jurisdictional basis of specific jurisdiction, mitigates 9 that concern.

10 Fourth, Plaintiffs are United States citizens who allege that 11 they were harmed by PTL and PBL's activities, which set 12 anticompetitive prices on products Plaintiffs purchased in the 13 United States. That gives United States federal courts an interest 14 in hearing this case. Burger King, 471 U.S. at 473.

15 Fifth and sixth, because the Court has handled the MDL for 16 years, the efficiency, effectiveness, and convenience of this 17 matter's resolution are best served by keeping the case in this 18 forum, regardless of the ultimate remedy (if any) granted to 19 Plaintiffs. While some evidence and many witnesses related to PTL 20 and PDBL may be abroad, the same is true for most parties in this 21 case, and a combination of modern technology and coordination among 22 the parties has so far ensured that evidentiary matters are handled 23 efficiently.

24 Finally, concerning the existence of an alternative forum, the 25 Court has received no briefing on the issue. The Court finds, as 26 in other cases raising the same issue, that this factor favors 27 neither party.

28 ///

1 The Court finds, under the circumstances described above, that 2 exercising specific jurisdiction over Defendant for the purposes of 3 this case is reasonable. The Court notes that PTL and PDBL 4 occasionally object to Plaintiffs' allegations on the grounds that 5 the various Philips Defendants left the CRT business in June 2001, 6 either because of a joint venture with LG or for other reasons.
7 See, e.g., Reply at 11 n.9. But Plaintiffs have sufficiently 8 alleged that, for at least some times during the Class Period of 9 1995-2007, PTL and PDBL had minimum contacts with the United States 10 sufficient for the Court to find that exercising specific 11 jurisdiction over them is reasonable.

12 C. Tardiness and Discovery

13 PTL and PDBL ask that if the Court denies their motions to 14 dismiss, it forbid Plaintiffs from requesting or receiving 15 additional discovery. Reply at 7 n.8. They also note that they 16 would be prejudiced by being added at this late hour and not being 17 able to fully participate in discovery. Id. The Court is not 18 convinced by the prejudice argument, especially since PTL and 19 PDBL's lawyers have been involved in this action for years, and the 20 Philips Defendants have had numerous opportunities to defend the 21 interests of all of their constituent entities.

22 The Court does not find that the late confirmation of PTL and 23 PDBL's status -- particularly given the evident lack of clarity
24 between their present and former counsel's positions -- would work 25 any unfairness on them. As to discovery, both parties should be 26 held to the calendar as it stands now. As the Court has made 27 clear, it has no plans to alter the trial calendar further. If the 28

1 parties later come to specific stipulations that will neither cause
2 prejudice nor derail this case, the Court will consider them.

4 V. CONCLUSION

5 As explained above, the Court DENIES Defendants Philips Taiwan 6 Limited and Philips do Brasil Ltda.'s motion to dismiss the 7 Indirect Purchaser Plaintiffs' Fourth Consolidated Class Action
8 Complaint.

10 IT IS SO ORDERED.
