Steptoe & Johnson LLP announced a major expansion of its financial services practice with the arrival of Micah Green and his six-member team. Mr. Green, who has joined the firm as a partner in the Washington office, will lead the firm's Financial Services practice and co-chair the Government Affairs & Public Policy Group.

Mr. Green brings an understanding of the policy and political environment with decades of experience representing the players and products in the financial markets throughout the United States and globally. For the past three decades, he has worked directly with key policy makers who impact the regulation of the financial services sectors, financial products and capital markets, as well as those who draft tax laws and regulations. Mr. Green has represented The Depository Trust and Clearing Corporation (DTCC), the Wholesale Markets Brokers Association Americas (WMBA), and several other clients throughout the Dodd-Frank legislative process, continuing into the ongoing rule-making process at the CFTC and the SEC, and other financial regulators on a wide range of issues, with a particular emphasis on capital markets, financial products and the new regulatory framework governing the swaps market under Dodd-Frank.

Also joining Steptoe as partners are Carolyn Walsh and Matthew Kulkin, and as senior policy advisors Michael Dunn, a former commissioner and acting chair of the CFTC and Richard Shilts, a former director of the CFTC's Division of Market Oversight. Two associates, Mara Giorgio and Grace Kim, round out the group, which is also bolstered by the recent arrival of Steptoe partner Dan Mullen, a former investigations branch chief within the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's enforcement office. Together, the newly expanded Financial Services practice will bring together professionals in the legislative, regulatory, compliance, enforcement and financial litigation practices.

Attorneys: Micah Green, Carolyn Walsh, Matthew Kulkin, Michael Dunn, Richard Shilts, Mara Giorgio and Grace Kim (Steptoe & Johnson LLP).
