FEBRUARY 20, 2024

Quiet week includes no new filings, withdrawals

The IPO market's only activity last week was two completed offerings as no companies filed new registrations or Forms RW. Puerto Rico-based Unusual Machines made its public market debut. The offering generated $5 million in proceeds for the provider of first-person view drone technologies. The other new issuer was Chromocell Therapeutics. The maker of pain management therapeutics priced after 13 months in public registration. SIC 2836 (Biological Products) has now produced four IPOs in 2024, more than any other industry group.

The week's activity included no preliminary registrations for the first time since December 2022. February's tally of new filings is holding at nine, currently 12 fewer than January's total. Last February saw 22 companies publicly register.

No companies elected to withdraw their pending registration statements last week.
